"One Fine Sunday in the Funny Pages"

FEBRUARY-MARCH

This unique travelling exhibition of cartoon art, curated by Madison native John Read (himself a cartoonist), features the original art of over 100 different newspaper comic strips and panels. Aside from the unprecedented participation of so many cartoonists, what makes this show so unique is the fact that every comic in the exhibit was published in newspapers across America on the same day! This celebration of the wild variety of comics assembles examples of virtually every American strip and panel currently being published — from the longest-running classics to those just recently launched. Visitors will see their favorite features, be introduced to comics they've never read, and re-introduced to characters they may not have seen in awhile, all while enjoying the wide diversity of styles, themes and genres of today's "funny pages!" This delightful museum-quality experience is a delight for anyone who has ever enjoyed the quintessential Sunday pastime!

Mississippi Art Colony's Traveling Art Show

FEBRUARY-APRIL

The Mississippi Art Colony's 2012 Spring traveling show features juried works that range from abstract to photo realistic paintings. Mississippi, Louisiana, Alabama, and Texas are just some of the states represented. These selected works, including several award winning pieces, will be on exhibit at the Canton Welcome Center from February through April.

Magnolia Wool Dust Society

MARCH

View the beautiful handwork of the Magnolia Wool Dust Society (ATHA Chapter 114). This talented guild will display their hand hooked rugs, wool applique penny rugs, Oxford punch, Russian punch and more. This month-long event will showcase the traditional handcrafts of America as featured in the latest book by Jessie Turbayne, Rug Hookers of the Deep South.

Allison's Wells Quilters

APRIL

The Allison Well's Quilters will exhibit their quilts for the entire month of April. The quilts are handmade. In addition to the April exhibit, each member of Allison's Wells Quilters will showcase a quilt every two weeks throughout the year in the lobby of the Canton Welcome Center.
